

So, what do you do? Easy.

Email me, at ericwaltersauthor@gmail.com and tell me you're 'in', give me your school address and I'll mail out the poster and book marks. In the fall email me back, tell me what you did, how you organized the program, share successes and problems, and things you would do differently to improve it. Let me know how many students utilized the program, how many books went out and how many came back. I'll use this information to give feedback to all of the schools that were involved. You'll be connected with Orca Publishing to take advantage of their generous offer. They will allow you to replace missing books at minimal cost, but, I'm certain, they would even allow you to purchase other books to simply expand your collection.

Well, are you in?

Eric Walters is the best-selling Canadian author of over 100 books for children and young people. He is a former elementary teacher, social worker, and proud recipient of the Order of Canada. Each year he presents to over 100,000 students across North America, talking about his passion for literature and literacy.